Accessibility in Athletics

Finding the Freedom to Move in the ADA

Natalie McCarthy – Former Paralympic Athlete

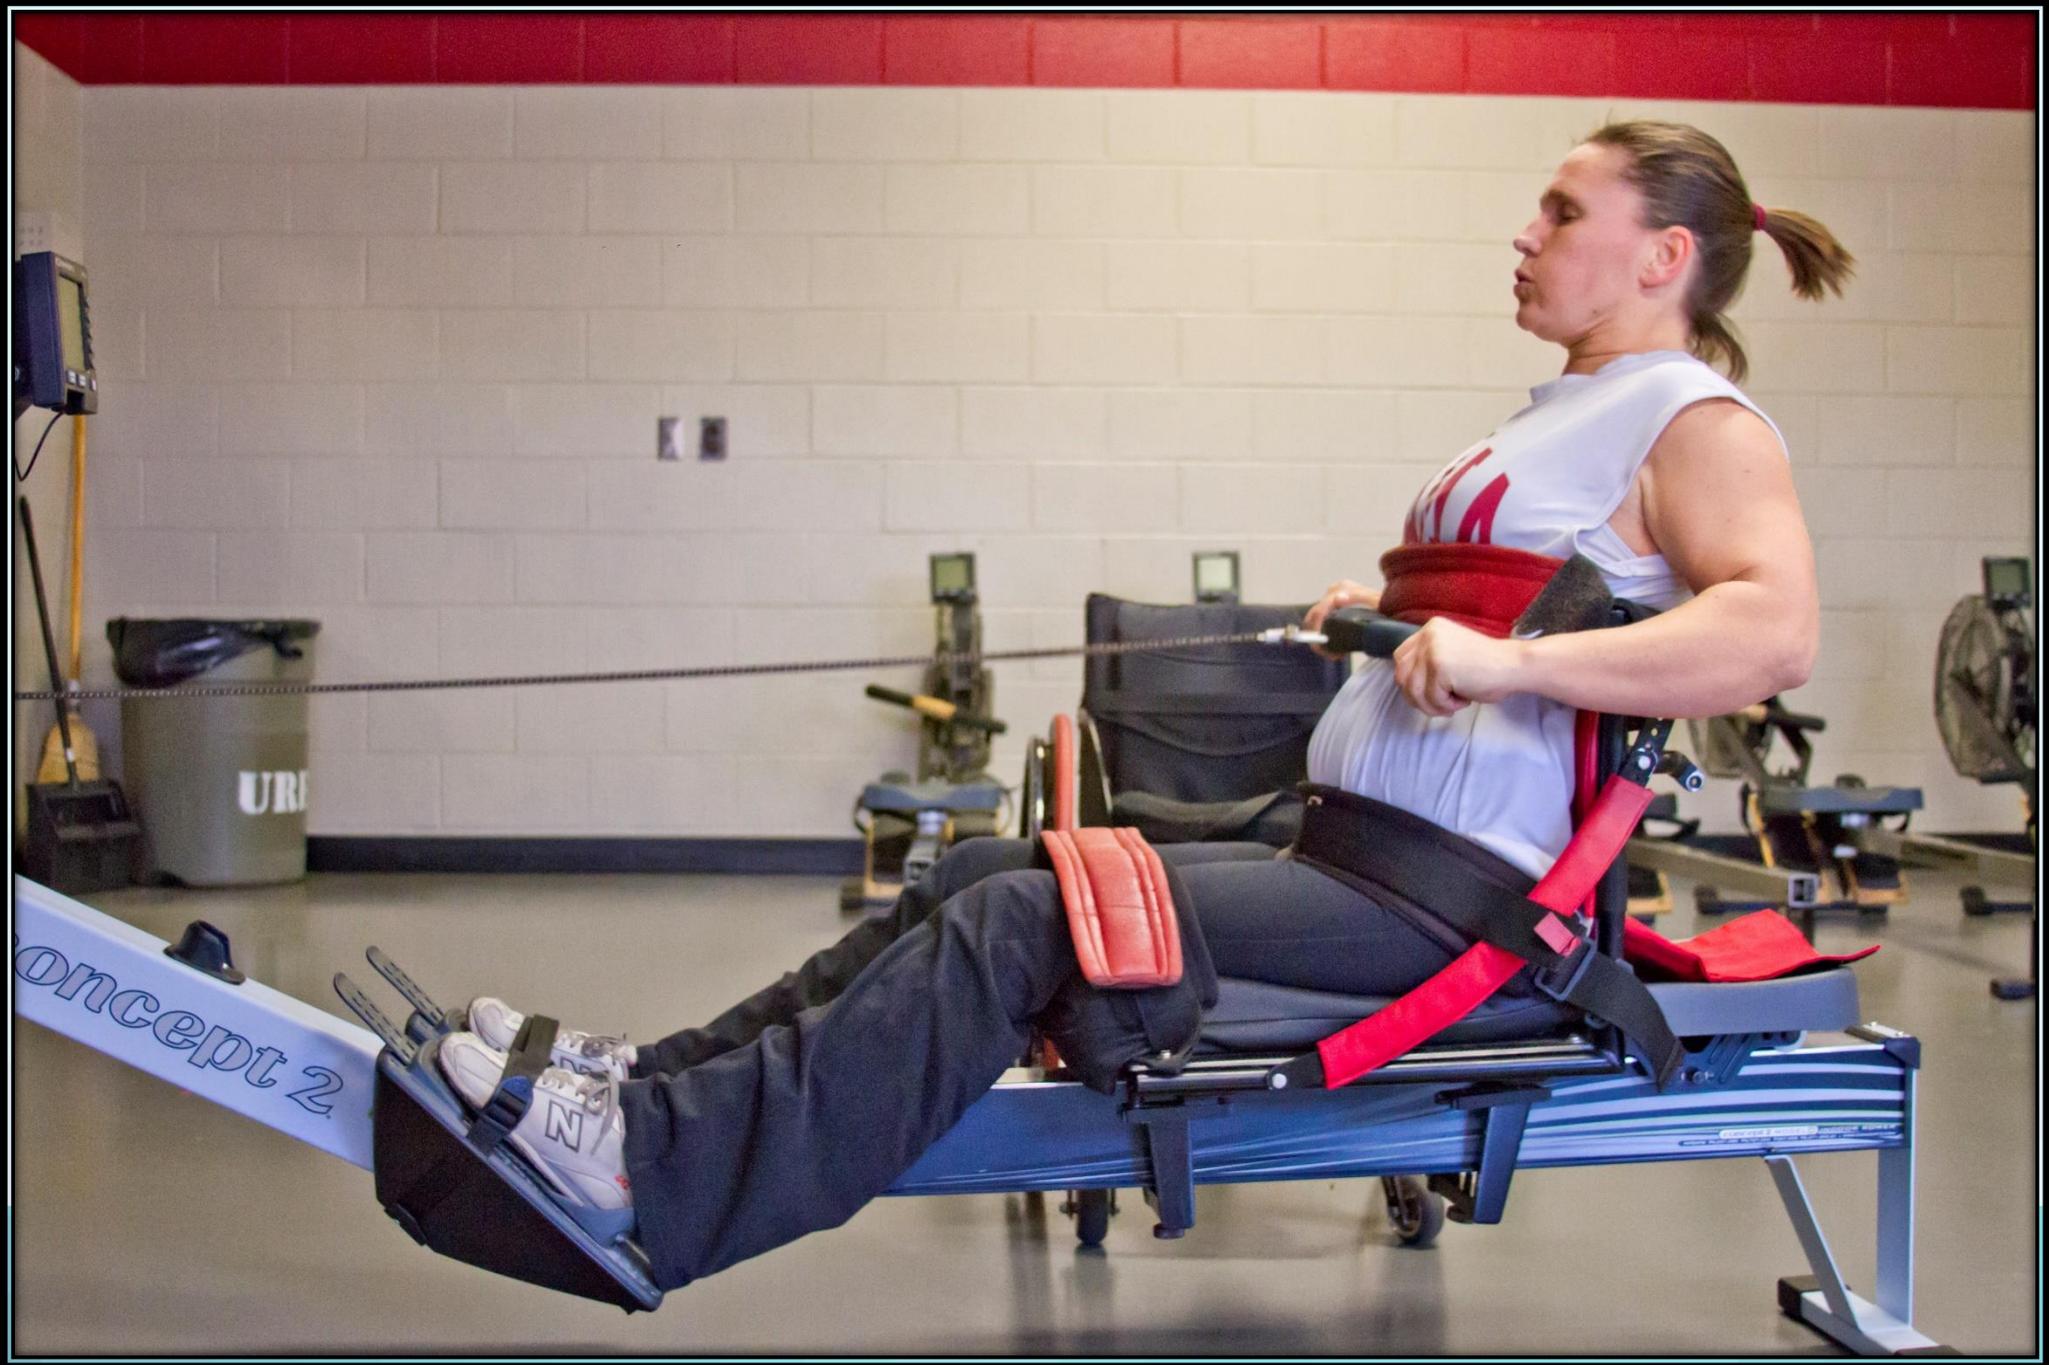

Presentation Overview

- Intro to presenter
- What is the law? What does the ADA require for places of fitness and recreation?
- How do these requirements look in practice? What does it mean to be “readily achievable”? When accommodations are not “readily achievable,” what options are available?
- Why do we require these accommodations? Why is this important?
- Personal experiences in requesting and receiving accommodation.
- Examples of simple, inexpensive, and successful accommodations.
- Conclusion

My Bio

- Natalie McCarthy was born in Tacoma, WA. At 10, she lost her sight to brain cancer. Natalie adapted to blindness by finding her identity in sports. She began in track and field in middle school and continued until her first year at Pacific Lutheran University, where she transitioned to Rowing. Natalie competed four years with the women's varsity crew and graduated in 2009.
- While competing for PLU, Natalie was invited to train with the US Para-rowing national team. After several years of training and success in domestic competitions including The Head of the Charles and The Royal Canadian Henley Regatta, Natalie earned a place on the 2013 national team. She competed in the Legs, Trunk and Arms Mixed Double Sculls and won a bronze medal at the 2013 World Rowing Championship in Chungju, South Korea. She earned a place on the 2015 World Championship team in Lac d'Aiguebelette France and finished 5th at the 2017 World Championship in Sarasota, FL. Outside of competition, she takes on leadership roles including Athlete Representative for the US Rowing Para High Performance Committee and General Para Sports Representative on the US Olympic Committee's Athlete Advisory Counsel.
- Natalie lives in Seattle, WA with her guide dog, Vidal, her retired guide, Gazette, and her fiancé, Alden. Natalie works as a Case Manager at the Dispute Resolution Center of King County and attends law school at Seattle University. She rows locally at Seattle Rowing Center. She strives to be an advocate for para-athletes and others facing barriers to inclusion on a local and international stage.
